Virginia Guard unit begins integrating with active duty wing

Integration Milestone: First 2-ship F-22A sortie flown by Virginia Air Guard pilots

March 5, 2006 by Maj. D.D. Magaldi,
JFHQ VA (Air), Langley AFB, Va

No fanfare or balloons, no speeches or fuss. February 16, 2006 was quiet, sunny and clear just the way Lt. Col. Phillip Guy and Maj. Patrick DeConcini wanted it, as they climbed into two F-22As on the parking ramp at Langley AFB for an air-to-air training sortie. On the surface, the event appeared routine. But, their flight that day added a unique footnote to the rich aviation history of Langley AFB and the active duty's 1st Fighter Wing (FW), and marked a significant milestone for the 192d Fighter Wing of the Virginia Air National Guard (ANG).

On that day, the first two-ship flight of Virginia ANG piloted F-22As took to the sky over Langley AFB in the Air Force's newest fighter and the world's premier air dominance aircraft, the F-22A Raptor. We celebrate this milestone, commented the 192d Fighter Wing's Lt. Col. James Cox, a senior Virginia ANG fighter pilot now at Langley working on the integration. "I congratulate these two men who have been a pivotal force in securing our proud unit's future. Well done! I look forward to the first four-ship."

In the early 1990s, the 192d Fighter Wing was among the first of all ANG units in the nation chosen to fly the F-16C as that aircraft was transferred from active duty to ANG service. With slightly less than 70 miles separating the two units, the 1st and 192d Fighter Wings, interacted on a regular basis conducting dissimilar Air Combat Tactics (DACT) training with each other several times each year.

As the Air Force moved into the 21st century with increased operations tempo and the realization that new, more capable aircraft entering the AF would result in a smaller inventory and far fewer units needed to fly them, senior Air Force leaders initiated a study to integrate the 192d FW and the 1st FW. The integration is called a Classic Associate construct, with the goal being an enhanced war fighting capability of the 1st FW through the functional integration of Virginia ANG personnel, but with separate administrative chains of command. The project is one of many objectives of the Air Force's Total Force Integration initiative (TFI).

Lt. Col. Guy and Maj. DeConcini have flown with each other in the F-16C for close to five years at the 192d Fighter Wing, based at the Richmond International Airport. In July of 2005, Lt. Col. Guy became the first Virginia ANG pilot to complete the F-22A fighter transition course at Tyndall AFB, Florida. He attended the course with pilots from Langley's 27th Fighter Squadron. Major DeConcini followed in a subsequent class. Lt. Col. Guy has been flying with the 27th FS for more than seven months, waiting for his first flight with a fellow Air Guardsman.

"It was great to have Major DeConcini going up with me" Lt. Col. Guy said. "It took us back to when I certified him as an F-16 Instructor Pilot; now we're in the upgrade process with a new jet."

The pilots are impressed with the F-22A, "It is awesome to be flying the leading-edge fighter platform in the Air Force" Lt. Col. Guy said. "It is a great fighter. Historically the Air Guard flew the older ones; this is a very exciting time for the Virginia Air National Guard."

"It is equally exciting for the pilots to be flying with the 27th Fighter Squadron, the oldest continually active fighter squadron in the Air Force. The history here and being a part of a new chapter in that history is incredible" Maj. DeConcini said.

The 192d also brings a very rich history (going back to World War II) that we take pride in and celebrate. We are glad to be moving into a state-of-the-art fighter and a mission that will take us into future.

For the 192d FW, flying the F-22 on an active duty base is another step into the Total Force and another step in making the Air Guard a more integral part of the Air Force. This move also helps establish longevity for the unit as it moves into a fighter that will fly for the next 20-plus years and out of the F-16C which will be retiring in the near future.

The 192d FW brings to Langley AFB a large number of seasoned, experienced pilots. Nearly every Virginia ANG pilot has flown in combat and has 1,500 to 3,000 hours of fighter aircraft experience, with the average running at more than 1,800 hours. "The talent here [at Langley] is incredible. We have already learned a great deal from each other" Lt. Col. Guy pointed out. "And there is much we will continue to learn from each other. This is an opportunity to provide our nation with unparalleled mission capability."

"This [integration] is a great opportunity to capitalize on the experience and stability of the ANG and the talent and mobility of the active duty. The stability of staying in one place and working with the same group of people over time has provided us with great experience. Now we are teaming that experience with the young talent in the 1st Fighter Wing" Lt. Col. Guy noted.

"Both pilots feel the active duty and ANG cultures compliment each other. They believe the stability and longevity of ANG personnel will help provide continuity and prevent valuable information from being lost during periods of rapid movement and turnover among active duty personnel." And, Lt. Col. Guy added. "The Guard will benefit and grow from the new talent and new ideas brought in by an ever-changing Langley population."

About 60 192d FW personnel, primarily in aircraft maintenance, but from a variety of Air Force Specialties, are now working side-by-side with their active duty counterparts at Langley AFB. Some are among the small fulltime contingent that keeps the 192d FW running during the week. Some are traditional Guard men and women who keep their military skills honed by training one weekend each month and during a two-week field training each year. By the time the integration is finished sometime in 2009, nearly 1,000 192d FW personnel will have moved to Langley.

Another first for Lt. Col. Guy and Maj. DeConcini will come late in May when the ANG pilots will fly the F-22A alongside 27th Fighter Squadron pilots in Alaska at Northern Edge 06, the Pacific Command's premier joint training exercise designed to practice combat operations, and enhance interoperability among the services. It will be the first operational exercise for the F-22A.

129th Field Artillery Detachment returns home after deployment

A Freedom Salute Ceremony (the Freedom Salute Campaign is the one of the largest Army National Guard recognition endeavors in history, designed to publicly acknowledge Army Guard soldiers and those who supported them during the President's call to duty for recent military operations) was conducted to publicly recognize and thank the soldiers, their families and members of the community and organizations that played such an important role in assuring the 129th Field Artillery Detachment, Virginia Army National Guard, successfully accomplished its mission in support of Operation Iraqi Freedom.

Approximately 16 soldiers of 129th Field Artillery Detachment entered active federal service on September 27, 2004 and deployed to Ft. Sill, Okla. where they completed preparation for deployment to Iraq in support of Operation Iraqi Freedom. After having served in Iraq for approximately one year these Virginia Army National Guard soldiers returned to Ft. Sill on November 26, 2005 to complete administrative processing for release from active federal service.

On completion of that processing they traveled to their home armory in Sandston on December 3, 2005 where they were released from active federal status.

AUXILIARY NEWS

1st QUARTER - 2006 ISSUE

There were six (6) members in attendance at the 28 January 2006 Auxiliary Meeting.

Due to the attendance of only 2 members at the October 2005 meeting there was no formal meeting held.

DON'T FORGET: The 32nd Annual VaA/ANGEA 2006 State Conference is fast approaching. The conference will be held 28-30 April 2006, in Roanoke, VA at the Holiday Inn-Tanglewood, telephone (540) 774-4400. Register and make your hotel reservations now.

AND DON'T FORGET: the Auxiliary needs items for their Silent Auction at the State Conference in Roanoke in 2006. It is not too early to start thinking about this. If you have an item you wish to donate, bring it to Anne Atkinson or Judy Wade, Ways & Means Chairpersons. We want to make this a huge success so bring lots of items that the people "just can't turn down"!

Charlotte Kuykendall's report on 2005 Silent Auction Report: The 2005 Silent Auction sponsored by the Auxiliary had 45 items donated. The auction brought in $444.00 and we received $57.51 in cash donations for a total of $501.51. This money will fund our $500.00 scholarship for next year. Elaine St. Clair was our most generous bidder – thanks Elaine! Thanks to Joan Lee for helping me with the auction set up, staying with the items and collecting the money. Joan made a hit with her knitted scarves and Mary Jeffries was the lucky bidder on these. Joan took several orders from members for the scarves. We also appreciate so much the support we receive from the VaA/ANGEA members. It was a successful auction because of our location.

CARES & PRAYERS: Do not forget our own Freda Vaught. The last time I talked to George she was just about the same. She doesn't recognize him now. George is still taking care of her at home. I know he would appreciate cards and calls.

Next Auxiliary meeting: VaA/ANGEA-Auxiliary will be 29 April 2006 in Roanoke, VA, in the Holiday Inn-Tanglewood at the 2006 Annual State Conference. All Auxiliary members are welcome to, and urged to attend the meeting and the luncheon.

Year 2006, is an election year. Contact Melody McGhee, Nominating Committee Chairperson, if you are interested in running for an office. Now is the time to be looking for your next President, Vice President, Secretary and Treasurer.

If you have names of any Auxiliary members who died in the time frame of April 2005 to April 2006, please send them to me.

If you have names of any Auxiliary members who are ill or need cheering up, or if they have special happy events, births, etc, please send me their names.

What direction the Auxiliary is, depends on you. We need to keep the communication lines open. If you have not heard from your state president or area director, take time to contact them. It could be they need a helping hand or a kind word. You never know unless you care enough to find out.

Many thanks to Elaine St Clair for stepping up to the plate and preparing this newsletter.

Mary E. Jeffries, President

2. Click on the red "Links of Interest" button on the left side of the page.
3. Scroll down to "Virginia Military Installations" and you will see the link for the State Military Reservation.

<><><>MILITARY RECORDS <><><>

You can now access your DD-214 on-line. Please pass this information on to retired military personnel you may know.

The National Personnel Records Center has provided the following website for veterans to access their DD-214 online at <http://vetrecs.archives.gov>.

This may be particularly helpful when a veteran needs a copy of his DD-214 for employment purposes. Please see the details below.

The National Personnel Records Center is working to make it easier for veterans with computers and Internet access to obtain copies of documents from their military files.

Military veterans and the next of kin of deceased former military members may now use a new online military personnel records system to request documents. Other individuals with a need for documents must still complete the Standard Form 180 which can be downloaded from the online web site.

The new web-based application was designed to provide better service on these requests by eliminating the records center's mailroom processing time. Also, because the requester will be asked to supply all information essential for NPRC to process the request, delays that normally occur when NPRC has to ask veterans for additional information will be minimized.

Veterans and next of kin may access this application at <http://vetrecs.archives.gov>.
